Removing Dyslexia as a Barrier to Achievement

The dyslexia friendly schools toolkit

Author: Neil MacKay

Publisher: SEN Marketing, 3rd edition 2012

The author of this book has worked in the area of specific learning difficulties in the UK for many years. He argues for the need to provide Dyslexia Friendly learning environments and in doing so says schools will improve the achievement of all students. His ideal school would: be dyslexia friendly, celebrate learning differences, recognise learning preferences, accept work in different forms and develop emotional literacy.

This book is packed with good ideas for teachers to implement in any classroom and at any level. There are worked examples as well as templates plus lots of different strategies to meet the learning needs of every student. Highly recommended.
